The Canvass of the Vote of Louisiana-Re publican Reply to the Democratic Communication of Tuesday-They Have No Au thority to Interfere in the Counting of the Returns-Louisiana Law Quoted-A Just Declaration of the Election Earnestly De-

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 16.-Reply of Republicans to the communication from Democrats inviting a conference:

NEW OBLEANS, Nov. 16th, 1876. GENTLEMEN-The majority of the undersigned to whom your note of the 14th inst., was addressed, only arrived in this city yesterday evening. We have therefore been unable to reply till this morning, and can only regret that your communication should have been given to the press immediately upon its delivery, and without the possibility of an answer accompanying it. You remark that you are informed that we came at the request of the President, to see that the Board of Canvassers make a fair count of the votes cast, and that we meet and confer in order that such influence as we possess may be exerted on behalf of such a canvass of the votes actually cast as by its fairness and Impartiality shall command the respect and acquiescence of the American people of all parties.

We join heartily with you in connsels of peace, and in the expression of an earnest desire for a perfectly honest and just declaration of the result of the recent election in Louisiana by its lawfully constituted authorities, and we may add that we know of no reason to doubt that such a declaration will be made, but we do not see the propriety or utility of a conference on the basis and subject to the limitations you propose; for we have no such duty imposed on us, and as suggest ed by the clause of your note first quoted we are at most requested to be witnesses of what shall occur in the canvass of the votes, without power or legal influence over the result or over the means by which, under the law of Louisiana, the result is to be determined. We cannot doubt that in this you, upon reflection, will concur with us. We are here as private citizens with no official power. We therefore cannot supercede or modify any law of this State. nor have we any right to control or influence any of its officers as to the manner in which they shall perform the min-isterial or judicial duties imposed upon them by its laws, and should we, being strangers and without official functions, attempt this, we should be condemned by the people of every State of the Union for an improper interference with local administration. The following extract from the laws of Louisiana show that the Canvassing Board is expressly required in certain cases to exercise judicial as well as ministerial functions.

Section 3. That in such canvass and compilation the returning officers shall observe the following order: They shall compile, first, the statements from all and voting places at which there shall have been a fair and peaceable reg-istration and election. Whenever from any poll or voting place there shall be received the statement of any Supervisor izens, of any riot, tumult, acts of violence, tended to prevent, a fair, free and peace able vote of all qualified electors entitled to vote at such poll or voting place, such returning officers shall not canvass, count or compile the statements from such poll or voting place till the statements from all other polls or voting places shall have been cauvassed and compiled. The returning officers shall then proceed to investigate the statements of riot, tumult, acts of violence, intimidation, armed resistance, bribery or corrupting influence at any such poll or voting place, and if from the evidence of such statement they shall be convinced that such riot, tumult or acts of violence, &c., bribery or corrupt influence did not materially interfere with the purity or freedom of the election at such poll or voting place, or did not prevent a sufficient number of qualified voters thereat from registering or voting as to materially change the result of the election, then and not otherwise said returning officers shall canvass and compile the vote of such poll or vo-ting place with those previously canvassed and compiled; but if the said return ing board shall not be fully satisfied with it, it shall be their duty to examine further testimony in regard thereof, and for this they shall have power to send for persons and papers. If after such examination the said returning officers shall be convinced that said riot, tumult, acts of violence, &c . did materially interfere with the purity and freedom of the election at such poll or voting places, as did prevent a sufficient number of qualified electors thereof from registering and voting as to materially change the result of the vote of the election, the said returning officers shall not canvass or compile the statement of the vote of the poll or voting place, but shall exclude them from their returns; provided that any person interested in said election by rea-son of being a candidate for office shall be allowed a hearing before said returning officers, on making application with-in the time specified for the returns of said election.

If there are any facts requiring the judgment of the board upon the validity of any election or return affected by such frauds or violence, it would be a mani-fest interference with States rights and local self-government for persons like without official right, to attempt to influence or control its judicial action. Had a corresponding board in the State of New York in 1869 been anthorized to pass upon the fraudulent re-turns of votes of the city of New York that year, and a delegation of citizens of Louisiana, however respectable, attempted to influence its judicial action upon the facts presented to it under the laws of that State, such attempt would have been universally condemned. If the and the Government would fail to comduties of the Canvassing Board of Lou-isiana were merely ministerial or clerical, as in the case of any officer charged by law with the duty of verifying and declaring the result of any election and investigation with no discretion as when the President of the Senate dethe several States in the election of Pres-

HORATIO SEYMOUR'S VIEWS

What He Says about the Presidential Crisis-Grant's Unfortunate Selection,

> [From the New York Sun, Nov. 16.] Utica, N. Y., November 15.

In these days of excitement, growing out of the political situation, Horatio Seymour maintains his thoughtful calmness. He comes to Utica from his Deerfield farm every day when the weather and his health will permit. He is not well. He has to abstain from writing al. together, and he is able to read but little. In personal appearance, however, he shows no signs of declining strength. He stands erect as ever, the model figure of the statesman. He took a deep and undisguised interest in the canvass preceding the election . Against the wish of his physicians, he delivered two speeches in Utica, two in Deerfield, and one or two elsewhere in Oneida county. He spoke with less than his old-time vigor, but with an earnestness and solemnity which gave to his voice the inspiration of a prophet.

I found Horatio Seymour this arternoon at the law office of his brother, John F. Seymour, who occupies a leading position at the Utica bar. I made known my business, and the Governor signified his willinguess to be interviewed. He remarked but felt compelled to declined the invitaof Registration or Commissioner of Elec-tion in form as required by section 26 of with a smile that experience had taught senator in Congress he might be called Senator in Congress he might be called him the advantage of yielding gracefully intimidation, armed disturbance, bribery or carrupt influence which prevented, or nity, lest they should revenge themselves nity, lest they should revenge themselves on him by ascribing to him sentiments which he never uttered-a style of attack with which he is not unfamiliar. I began by asking Gov. Seymour whether he had been invited to go to New Orleans? He replied that he had not. He would not have been able to go if he had been; his health would not permit it. He asked to hear the names of those who had been asked by the President to go there. I read them, and he said: "I believe they are all Republicans, and most of them were actively engaged canvass which has just closed. It is very unfortunate. I am surprised that the President's own good sense, or the advice of his counsellors, should not have prompted him to select men from both parties to witness the count of the Louisiana Returning Board. These men act in a semi-official capacity, and if they had been impartially chosen the people would have given great weight to what they said; but there was no name in the list, excepting that of William M. Evarts. which carries with it any suggestion of unprejudiced judgment, and I understand that Mr. Evarts declines to serve. 1 repeat that the selection is very unfortunate, and I can not believe that the President would have made it had he given the subject more mature deliberation. I am told that several prominent Demo crats are now in New Orleans on the invitation of the Demoaratic National Committee. The presence of the leading men of both parties ought to produce a reassuring and quieting effect, but it is not fair that one side should act under the authority of the President of the United States, while the other side are looked upon as the mere representatives of a political party."

The Governor was asked what he thought the result of the present controversy over the Presidency would be, and he made this answer:

"I think it will be settled by general acquiescence in the election of Mr. Tilden. The Republicans can not afford to become responsible for a miscount in any of the Southern States. They can afford to go out of power; but they would be utterly ruined if they should accept power through fraud. If part of the vote of Louisiana were to be thrown out in order to make Gen. Hayes President, and he should assume the office under such circumstances, he would be known everywhere as Kellogg-Hayes. From the day of his inauguration the people would mistrust him. The better class of men in the Republican party would condemn the policy of the leaders. The party would lose its strength in every locality, they would be in a good position to re-cuperate their strength. They will con-tinue to cont of the Senate for two years clares and counts the votes of electors of at least; they will have a most powerful minority in the next House of Represident under the constitution of the United States, a different case would be presented.

It is in our judgment vital to the preservation of constitutional liberty that the habit of obedience to the forms of law should be sedulonely inculcated and and cultivated, and that resort to extraconstitutional modes of redress for actual greavances should be avoided and condemned as revolutionary, disorganizing, and tending to disorder and anarchy. To reduce the whole question, therefore to the mere elerical duty of counting, the work and in the south they said. Then he opat by all means be President. The exact working of the electoral system is not year generally understood, but every minority in the next House of Repreopinion as to conduct of the recent canvass on both sides. He said:

'The Democrats were weaker than the Republicans in the number of their speakin power that their list of professional politicians has become circums ribed; but the Republicans are weak in the character of their leading orators. They cultivated a tone of intense bitterness, while the people they addressed were, as a rule, temperate and thoughtful. The seeds of strife which these orators undertook to sow fell on barren ground. Moreover, the Republican campaign was entrusted to men on whose character the imputation of immoralities rested, justly or nejustly. These men were Gen. Dix, Mr, Blaine, Col. Ingersoll, and Gen. Kilpatrick. I have no desire to say anything unkind in regard to either of them, but it was freely charged by the Republicans themselves four years ago that Gen. Kil-patrick had disgraced himself and his country at a foreign court. Col. Ingersoll has shocked the sentiments of a large re ligious class by denouncing his Creator with the same violence that he employs when attacking the Democratic party. Mr. Blaine is yet to be tried on charges affecting his official integrity and his personal purity. Influstice to him, it ought to be added that he denies the truth of the charges, and the people are willing to give him the benefit of a doubt, but they cannot free him from suspicton. The position of Gen Dix is even more unfortunate. He was associated with General B. F. Butler in 1864 in an illegal interference with the voters of New York. The pretext was a desire to prevent frauds, yet it is shown by the re-port of his political briends in Congress, that at the very time (October 1864) he was engaged in making the Hoxie cona fraud upon the Government and the corner stone of the Credit Mobilier swinile. To use his own words, the interest of the road and through it the interest of the Government were utterately and de-liberately disregarded.' It turns out that while he was receiving pay of about eight housand dollars a year as a General in the army, he was getting the same sum annualty as President of the Pacific Railroad Company. As the road was built with money advanced by the Govern-ment, both salaries came of of the Treas-ury of the United States, and so did the $50,000 which Oakes Ames testified he extorted from the company while he was Minister to France. As the company can not pay the interest on the bonds issued for its benefit by the Government, the people are now taxed $4 000,000 each year to pay the interest on the bonds issued to the different Pacific Railroads, a argeshare of which was invested in fraudulent contracts. The people 'naturally distrusted a party whose leading advocates rested under the imputation of such immoralities. They did not respond to the passionate appeals of the gentlemen. I think it might be shown that where Blaine, Dix, Ingersoli and Kilpatrick spoke, the Republicans lost heavily on their vote of four years ago. I repeat that while the leaders were violent and bitter the people were thoughtful and temperate. In conclusion Gov. Seymour asserted his belief that the Republican managers would be forced to retire from the present untenable position in regard to the Pres idency. If they do not," he added, "their party will surely suffer annihilation.' Senator Francis Kernan, whose home is in this city, is absent in Watertown trying an important lawsuit. Before his departure, he told your correspondent that he had been invited to New Orleans, upon to pass on the validity of the canvass in that State. He expressed the belief that both parties would eventually join in denouncing any attempt to count in a defeated candidate for the Presidency, and counseled moderation and cool-

A HEROIC WIFE,

Last Tuesday morning about 3 o'clock, Mr. A. Rambo, who lives near Istan, was aroused by cries of distress coming apparently from the river, the voice being that of a woman. Heat once unfastened a skiff moored near his house, and rowed out in the direction of the sounds, which seemed to grow fainter. He called loudly, and in answer heard a faint call considerably below the point where he first heard it. Following as rapidly as he could, he soon came in sight of a dark object floating down the river, which he overtook, and found to be two skiffs lashed together and bottom side up, and the form of a woman clinging to them .-She called to him "for God's sake to be quick." as she was nearly exhausted. Mr. Rambo pulled alongside the floater, and discovered further that she was holding to one of the skiffs with one hand, and with the other clutching firmly the hair of a man's head, which she was, with heroic nerve, rying to keep above the waves. After much difficulty the inanimate form of the man was taken into the skiff, into which the woman followed, and not stopping to secure the boats, made for the shore, where the man was taken out and found to be insensible. Restoratives were procured, and after several hours hard work life was restor-

They gave their names as G. Foster and wife, and said that they, in company with a man whose name we failed to learn, had started from Omaha in the two skiffs for some point down the river. Several miles from Istan, about 10 o'clock on Monday night, the boats struck a snag and were overturned. The stranger was drowned at once, and in the attempt to save him, Mr. Foster became so exhausted as to sink, but was close enough to the hoats to which his wife was hanging to be caught by her; but being unable to change her position, she was compelled to float down in the wild waste of waters, expecting to meet death every instant, until she was heard and rescued. -Leavenworth Times.
